

Women are like cats - they're curious creatures

This is where being a shy, quiet man comes in to its own. I've probably given away too much here. But the truth is, you don't have to have a complete personality transplant and become some confident, talkative guy to attract a woman. Shy guys can be a real 'find' for a woman who has enough confidence in herself to explore.

Why? Because she's curious. She wants to explore this dark horse, this mystery man. Out-going men put all their wares in the front window, and after a quick window-shop, a woman knows if there's something in there she wants. That means the window has to do a damn good job presenting itself to attract attention.

But the quiet man doesn't put his wares in the window. And the curious woman wants to know what's inside.

Now, you will note that I used the term 'quiet man', not 'shy man'. There is a difference.

Have you heard of the 'strong, silent type'? Oh yeah, women really go for that type. And guess what? You're already part way there. You're not the jester or the show man. You're the quiet guy. The one no-one seems to notice.

I'm going to tell you WHY you're not noticed in one of my personal emails. And it's not because you're quiet. And it's not because your ugly or stupid, either.

There's a reason why girlie mags often have their women covered by a flimsy piece of cloth- a teddy, a see-through negligee. It leaves something to the imagination. It adds an allure, a mystery. Men can be curious creatures too! And when something is hidden, they want to know what's underneath.

Ever seen a woman's mag? There are no naked men. That's not because we're prudes, or old fashioned. It's because we have really good imaginations and we like to use them. A picture a sexy-looking guy with his chest bare and the top button of his jeans undone is enough to turn women to mush.

If men like a bit of mystery, then you can treble that for a woman. And you shy guys ARE a mystery, just by your very temperament. But it's using it effectively that makes the difference between the noticed, quiet man and the unnoticed one.

I'm not going to say anymore on this secret at this point because the rest of this REALLY is a secret that very few people know.

And there's only one way you'll find out. That's right- by signing up for my emails and promising me a testimonial IF you think you got something worthwhile.
